Dear Mark,

Apparently, you recently made Jonathan Speaker laugh with your baseless and wild assertions of your "accomplishments." Your arms and shoulders must be sore with all of your patting on your back. You, like most extremists, confuse activity for achievement/accomplishments.

The fun thing about today is that the internet has allowed us to expose and circulate your baseless and foolish statements. The truth will out. That is your major problem. Every time you put your wild statements in writing, they are circulated. Still, you continue. People see you and will soon see even more. That is why when some people say that you are smart and well informed, many, soon most of us, laugh. You don't get it, which endlessly delights me/us.

Remember: Truth matters.

Bonnie was all about lies, shadows and backroom use of government against all of us. She could not change and her record was exposed. You will have the same exposure. People are far more smart than you give them credit for.

Vty,

Rob

Dear Mark,

Perhaps there will be a time, but the odds are unlikely. You seem intent on stopping economic progress for working folks, not fostering it, which I do.

More and more identify and laugh at your wild attack methods, in defense of your clear lies, which are primitive and amateurish. You should change your methods, but do not seem to be able to, much like the rest of extreme Leftists.

Vty,

Rob

Given the long list of documented lies that you have told about me, it is incongruous that you should profess any interest in the truth. As usual, the facts and evidence are solidly on my side and thus my faith in the truth does not require your concurrence. I will simply add this to the ever-growing list.

As always, though we obviously have disagreements I do truly look forward to someday finding an issue where we can work side by side. Of course to do so would require that you put the betterment of our community and our economy above your personal agenda. I remain ever hopeful that you may someday demonstrate such willingness.

Dear Mark,

Funny, many people contradict what you assert occurred in that meeting.

Your problem is that you continue to be caught in lie after lie. Your credibility is very low. Look at what you told Mayor Frank about your trip to to State Lands. We supplied him with the proof that directly contradicted what you told him. Why would he listen to you again? That is hardly an isolated instance. Examples of your lack of veracity are numerous.

Truth matters. You just don't seem to think that it does. For that reason, unless you are talking to a fellow traveler, your credibility will continue to wane. People are much smarter than you think.

nty,

Rob

Hi Kay. Just as a note, I was involved in the GPU at the time that the small group of people 'walked out' and formed HELP because they didn't like the direction that the majority of the public wanted to go with the General Plan. Since you weren't there at the time, I'd be happy to inform you of the realities of history.
